As a nonprofit organization, our mission is to enhance the North Florida community’s quality of life by providing diverse and memorable arts and entertainment experiences, and by preserving a unique historic Jacksonville landmark.
A few weeks ago, toward the end of Frankie Valli’s Florida Theatre concert, we stood at the front of the theatre and looked back at you, the audience. Mr. Valli’s show climaxes with a slamming sequence of hits: “Sherry,” “Big Girls Don’t Cry,” “Rag Doll,” “Walk Like a Man,” “Let’s Hang On,” and fittingly, “December, 1963 (Oh What A Night).” As each song ended and the first notes of the next song were revealed to the audience, the increasing energy in the room was palpable. 2,000 people who mostly don’t know each other forgot about the world outside the theatre’s doors and shared a communal experience.

Whether it’s a veteran artist like Frankie Valli, who’s done this thousands of times, or a brand new artist who has never been here before (there were 30 new artists this year!), these are the moments we strive to provide for you. A great performance to electrify your soul, give you something to cheer for, and even something grand to ponder and think about once in a while.

Any city can build themselves a concert venue, but for music, dance and theatre artists who love giving great performances, and for audiences who enjoy seeing and hearing those performances in an intimate and authentic venue, there’s only one Florida Theatre.

The historic Florida Theatre has been managed, programmed and preserved by the Florida Theatre Performing Arts Center, Inc., a nonprofit corporation, since 1987. We are proud to be the stewards of this historic theatre and an organization that connects the world’s greatest performers with Jacksonville audiences.

We take our role as stewards of the historic Florida Theatre seriously, because it’s this 92 year old building that brings us all together. Part of being a good steward of a nonprofit corporation is being transparent about our operations, and we are pleased to present this 2018 Annual Report to you, our sponsors, donors and audience members.
